

Natural Living in the Allotment Garden with Feuerhand

Allotment gardens are experiencing a renaissance. Colonies of quaint little garden huts are emerging from dusty arbour. Behind high hedges, amidst lush flower beds and orchards, you will find the lovingly prepared huts. With rattan, sisal and linen, gardens are turned into a natural oasis of peace. Natural Living is the name of a trend that promises tranquillity and relaxation without stealing the show from nature. The steady glow of Feuerhand Hurricane Lanterns and the crackling fire of Feuerhand fireplaces turn your garden into an illuminated place of refuge.

Luminous garden joy

It is early evening, and it is starting to get slightly chilly. Going inside is not an option as these summer evenings need to be savoured to the fullest. The cosy rattan armchair next to the Fire Barrel becomes your favourite spot. With a warming blanket and your gaze lost in the dancing flames, you can sit there for ages while the reliable accented light of the Hurricane Lantern in dusk.

Thanks to its well-thought-out design, making fire in the stainless-steel fire barrel Pyron is easy and, more importantly, almost smoke-free. The sophisticated air-flow-system allows for secondary combustion with lambent flames and almost no smoke. Thus, your garden neighbours in the garden will not be disturbed by smoke and the evening ends in a relaxed atmosphere by the fire.

A source of light and heat for the garden arbour

An evening by the fire has its very own momentum. When the flames are blazing, peace returns for the thoughts to wander and to start talking about the matters you already thought about a lot or not at all until now. The Fire Bowl becomes a crackling focal point on the veranda in front of your arbour and attracts everyone's attention. As the fire in the Tyropit Fire Bowl radiates the heat evenly sideways, no one will feel cold. Thanks to the double-walled stainless-steel construction the wood burns efficiently and low-smoke.

In the evening, the sundeck becomes a relaxing place of well-being with cushions, plaids and blankets in light shades and natural fabrics. The light from the Hurricane Lanterns complements the light of a fire on a summer evening, consistent with Natural Living. This natural style matches the original charm of the allotment garden perfectly. Everything that is loud and restless is at rest here.

Natural is most beautiful: 3 x Natural Living in the allotment garden

- 1. Natural colours: Soft beige, grey, white – the natural colour palette almost forms automatically when gazing at allotment garden nature. Soft natural tones convey peace and relaxation. The style is simple and timeless, but never dull. Darker tones provide highlights.
- 2. Natural materials: Goodbye plastic! Natural Living style is as natural as possible. Wood, rattan, sisal and linen are popular materials, as the concept of sustainability plays a major role. Durable materials such as glass and metal are also most essential. Natural Living is environmentally friendly and responsible.
- 3. Natural light: The glow of a flame has its very own magic. In the garden a reliable, non-electric light source is indispensable. The Feuerhand Hurricane Lantern is a petroleum classic and reliably lights up the dark. The Baby Special 276 model provides up to 20 hours of constant light with one tank filling.
